Launching 10x. 791K views on X.

How three launch films took an AI app builder, founded by a 14-year-old, from first post to 791K views in four months.

About 10x

10x is Shopify for apps. Describe an idea, and it builds a native iOS app, tests it and takes it to the App Store.

Founder Evan Yadegari is 14 and already runs a $10K MRR app. We made all three of his launch films in four months.

The three chapters.

Chapter I

The brief

01

Every AI app builder sounds the same.

A new one launches on X every week. Each promises to turn a prompt into an app.

10x needed lines that put it in a different category, not a better version of the same one.

/ THE FEED · LAUNCH WEEK

“Build apps with AI”	EVERYONE
“Ship faster”	EVERYONE
“No code needed”	EVERYONE
Shopify for apps	ONLY 10X

02

A feature list doesn't stop a scroll.

10x does a lot: testing, competitor research, App Store submission, launch content.

Listed out, it reads like every other product page. It had to feel like an opportunity.

Chapter II

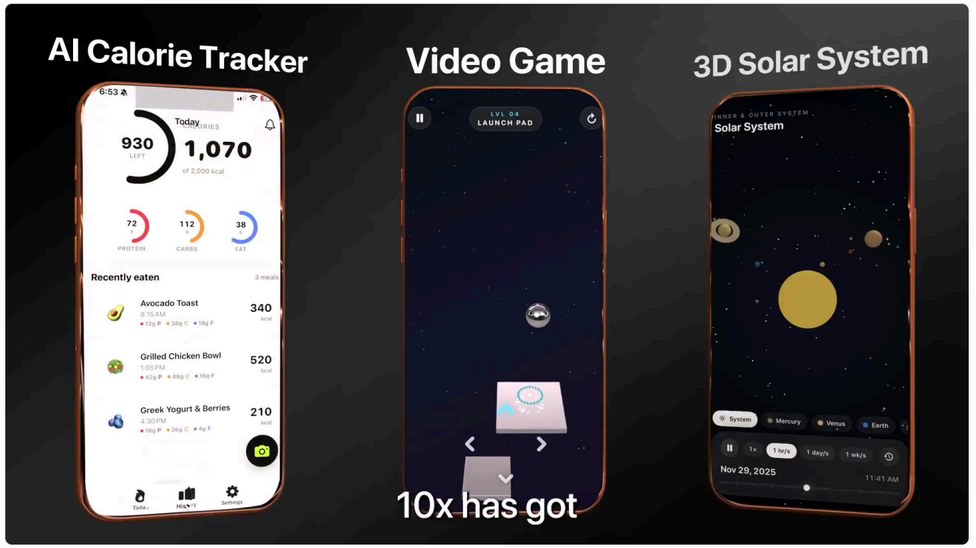

The films

01

/ THE HOOK · APR 2026

“I'm 14, and I built a $10K MRR app.”

The founder is the story. One sentence earns the next 58 seconds: the first open-source AI app builder.

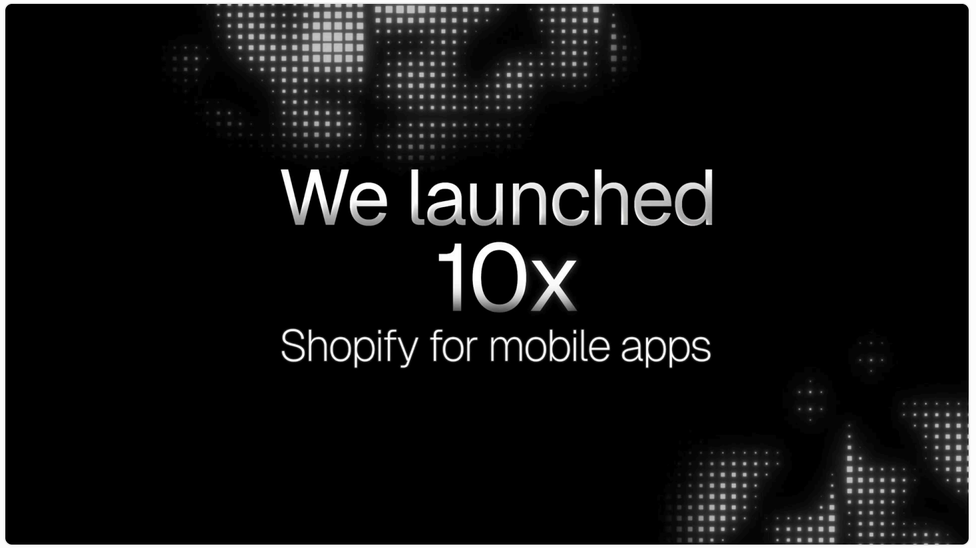

/ APPS BUILT WITH 10X

02

/ THE HOOK · MAY 2026

“Building apps in 2026 is like dropshipping in 2016.”

One line that turns an app builder into a gold rush, and makes Shopify for apps make sense in a second.

/ AUTOMATED TESTING

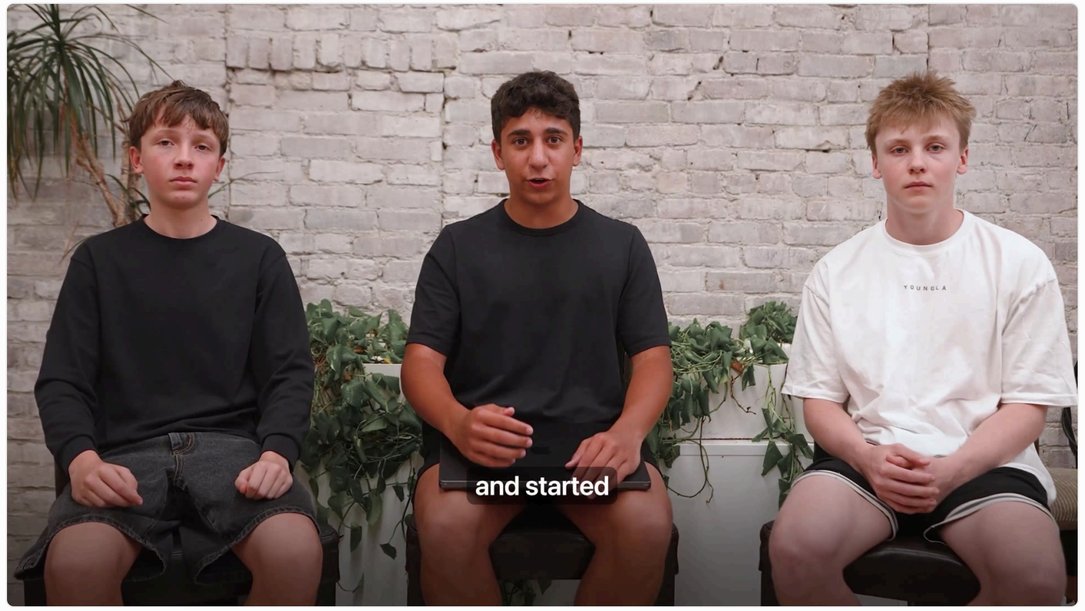

03

/ ROUND THREE · AUG 2026

Four months in, build from anywhere.

10x Web picks up the story: “Three months ago, we launched 10x.”

The old barrier, you needed a MacBook, becomes the setup. The payoff: build, test and publish from any device.
